Celebrating 50 years of cards, collectibles and Sports Collectors Digest

TELL US WHAT YOU THINK

To help celebrate the 50th anniversary of Sports Collectors Digest, we invite you to tell us about your favorite cards and collectibles, your most memorable moments as a collector, and what you think of the current state of the hobby. Also tell us how SCD has impacted your hobby journey over the years. Select letters and comments will appear in a new Letters section beginning next month or in our special 50th Anniversary issue later this year. Send your letters to jowens@aimmedia.com.

When Patrick Mahomes led the Kansas City Chiefs into Super Bowl LVII, it brought back memories of the great Chiefs teams and players from the 1960s and ’70s.

The Chiefs played in the very first Super Bowl in 1967, a 35-10 loss to the dominant Green Bay Packers. Three years later, Hall of Fame quarterback Len Dawson led them to their first Super Bowl victory — 23-7 over the Minnesota Vikings — to earn MVP honors.

Mahomes, the NFL’s most dynamic player, led KC to a third Super Bowl appearance in four years. Would he surpass Dawson by leading the Chiefs to a second Super Bowl victory and the third championship in franchise history? (This issue went to press on Feb. 10, two days before Super Bowl LVII.)

As collectors, we love sports history, particularly historic moments, significant milestones and key anniversaries.

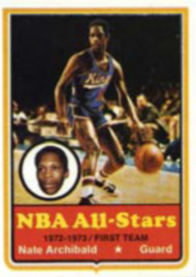
In our last issue, we celebrated the 50-year anniversary of the 1972 Miami Dolphins, the only team in NFL history to cap an undefeated season with a Super Bowl victory.

In December, we highlighted the 1972 Oakland A’s, another dynasty that dominated baseball in the early ’70s. And 50 years ago, the New York Knicks won their first NBA championship.

Each of those historic championship teams bring back memories of iconic players (and their cards) like Dawson, Catfish Hunter, Rollie Fingers and Reggie Jackson, Walt Frazier and Willis Reed.

2023 will no doubt bring back more memories of historic teams and memorable players.

The 1973 Dolphins won their second straight Super Bowl, the first team to do so since the Packers won Super Bowls I and II. The ’73 A’s also won their second straight championship, as did the 1972-73 Knicks, while John Wooden’s UCLA Bruins won their seventh straight NCAA basketball championship behind a red-headed center named Bill Walton.



TOM
SEAVER
PITCHER

1973 was dominated by Hall of Fame performances by sports immortals. Rod Carew led MLB in hitting with a .350 average (Pete Rose led the league with 230 hits), while Willie Stargell had a league-leading 44 home runs and Lou Brock stole 70 bases. On the mound, Tom Seaver had a sterling 2.08 ERA while Nolan Ryan fanned 383 batters.

In football, O.J. Simpson led the NFL with 2003 rushing yards, while Roger Staubach and Roman Gabriel each had 23 touchdown passes.

NBA fans witnessed two performances for the ages in 1973 as Tiny Archibald led the league with 34 points per game and Wilt Chamberlain hauled down 18.6 rebounds.

Each of those amazing performances led to cards that collectors in the 1970s couldn't wait to get their hands on.

1973 also saw the birth of Sports Collectors Digest as the hobby’s premier collectibles publication. We will celebrate our 50th anniversary this year by remembering the great stories, collections, collectors and sports moments that have appeared in these pages over the years.

We hope you will join us for our look back through 50 years of sports collecting history.

Hawaiian collector Dylan Davis shows passion for hobby

Dylan Davis was bitten by the collector's bug early, and he still has some of his vintage toys on display from his childhood.

Born and raised in California, he now resides in Hawaii, and yes I'm jealous.

The hobby bug bit him in 1985-86 and he's been hooked ever since. However, due to demographics and other variables, the hobby was something he mainly enjoyed individually. He started buying and selling on eBay in 2001 and enjoyed moving inventory and acquiring cards he wanted to add to his collection. He dreamed of the day when the hobby potentially could be a full-time venture.

Dylan is also active in another passion — surfing, a sport he almost competed in professionally and which his wife actually did. His wife, also a talented artist, is the biggest supporter of his hobbies and endeavors.

Hawaii, while beautiful, is not known as a hobby mecca. Dylan's nearest LCS is an hour away and doubles as a toy store. The shop does hold a monthly card show with ... brace yourself … four tables to peruse.

Dylan is a vintage guy but vintage cards can be hard to find on the island. He had to branch out to build his collection and his hobby community as well.

He is an avid listener of podcasts and audio books and some of the content he consumes is about baseball heroes he admired and collected. Once he discovered hobby content in both audio and video, he was drawn to it like a moth to a flame and couldn't get enough. He was enlightened, and his hobby world grew quickly.

I've met a lot of passionate collectors in my 40 years in the hobby, but Dylan's passion jumps to the top of the list and is contagious. He often wondered if he could share that passion on-screen like the many collectors and content creators he watched and enjoyed.

It didn't happen right away, but one night after watching the movie "42" and having an adult beverage or two, he took the plunge and launched his YouTube channel and his first video.

I always say passion can't be faked or held down. It's evident in Dylan's toy room, his surfboard room, and, of course, his card room, which is visible in his video content. His card room is something else, to say the least, as he is all about preserving his collection and goes to great lengths to do so. The display cases were all cut by hand and the cards are displayed behind specially ordered museum-grade glass. The windows are tinted and/or painted to prevent sun damage and the temperature is monitored constantly. (Dylan will be joining me soon for an episode with tips and techniques to preserve the cards we love.)

He's done well enough selling collectibles that he's been able to cut back his hours on his pond maintenance and Koi and Turtle business. Through his content, he's become a great hobby advocate and ambassador. He also just launched a bimonthly video podcast, "Turn Back the Clock," with Adam from Splendid Sports. His YouTube channel can be found at @DoubleDVintageBaseballCards.

Twenty-three years is enough NFL football for 45-year-old Tom Brady. On Feb. 1, 2023, he retired “for good.” So we won’t see Brady on the gridiron again, but in the hobby, he’s not going anywhere except up — in terms of memorabilia value.

True, there was no instant spike in Brady prices on eBay in the days following his announcement. But that’s not surprising, considering he retired last year before changing his mind and un-retiring.

Nor should we be surprised if the value of Brady memorabilia — already in the upper stratosphere — rises steadily over time. Michael Jordan’s memorabilia value keeps climbing as his exploits get further in the rear-view mirror, and Brady’s could take the same path. Increases are likely to be especially pronounced at major auction houses, where the cream of the crop will surface — the game-worn memorabilia, the rarities, the 10-grade cards and autographs.

For now, we’ll highlight a host of items on eBay that drew five-figure prices in the aftermath of Brady’s retirement:

- A signed 2000 Bowman Chrome rookie graded PSA 10 sold for $15,700 on 49 bids.
- Another 2000 Bowman Chrome example graded BGS 9.5 brought $15,099 on 34 bids.
- An autographed 2000 Press Pass rookie card graded PSA 10 fetched $11,300 on 40 bids.
- A signed 2020 Panini Flawless card inscribed “SB XXXVIII MVP” by Brady brought $11,211 on 48 bids. The “Flawless Finishes” card was marked #2/10.
- A 2000 Fleer signed Autographics card graded PSA 7 and marked #58/250 sold for $10,100 on 26 bids.

The holy grail Brady card — his 2000 Playoff Contenders autographed Rookie Ticket — is out of sight if in 10-grade condition. These days, Gem-Mint examples simply don’t show up on eBay. They tend to be headliners at Heritage, Goldin, Leland’s and SCP, among other auction houses.

You will, however, see lesser-condition Brady Contenders Rookie Tickets on eBay, and they bring healthy prices. In recent weeks, for example, a pair of Rookie Tickets graded BGS 8.5 sold for almost the exact same prices: $25,105 (53 bids) and $25,101 (72 bids).

IS BABE ACTUALLY A BARGAIN?

If you look at our Top 10 charts every month, you’ll see a steady stream of 21st century cards (think Brady, LeBron and Mahomes) selling for more money than a Babe Ruth autograph. Consider the 1-of-1 Topps Luminaries Ruth card bearing a cut signature from The Bambino: It recently sold for $17,600 on 28 bids on eBay.

Luminaries
Babe Ruth
BABE RUTH | NEW YORK YANKEES
1-of-1

Issued in 2022, the card was ungraded but came with Topps’s certification for the autograph. The card also included a slice of a game-used bat, although that’s nowhere near as enticing as the cut sig. As the reverse of the card notes, “The relic contained in this card is not from any specific game, event or season.”

Ruth autographs are much tougher to get than those of Brady, James and Mahomes. And when you think about his impact on sports, memorabilia and pop culture, Ruth will always be the king. So it’s natural to wonder why the price of his sig can be a relative bargain.

On the other hand, eBay sellers continue to list cards with cut Ruth signatures at high prices. Consider the following yet-to-be-sold items, all of them

WHAT IS A REED BUY?

Reed Kasaoka is the head buyer of the Sports Division at Dave & Adam's. His primary responsibility is traveling all over the country, buying private collections out of people's closets, bedrooms, attics, basements, garages, and storage units, as well as complete inventories of show dealers, shop owners, autograph dealers, and distributors. Reed comes up with some amazing finds - rarely seen unopened boxes, quality graded cards, certified autographed memorabilia, and much more.

active listings at press time (Feb. 10):

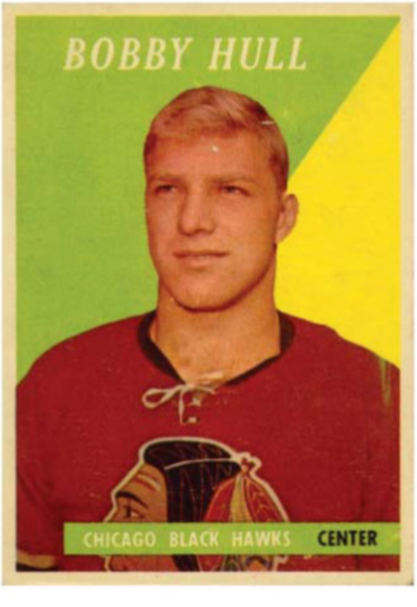
- 2018 Leaf Executive Collection One-of-One Cut Signature: This dual-autograph card bears cut sigs from both Ruth and Shohei Ohtani — the greatest two-way players in baseball history. Asking price: $475,000.
- 2001 Upper Deck Sweet Spot Signatures: This one-of-a-kind card presents a Ruth autograph cut from a signed baseball. Kevin Keating of Quality Autographs of Virginia authenticated the autograph. The eBay seller's asking price: $250,000.
- 2022 Topps Sterling Legendary Cut Signatures. This 1-of-1 card was graded BGS 9 and has an asking price of $120,000.

Given past sales of cards featuring Ruth cut signatures, the asking prices for these items may have one too many zeroes. Then again, in this hobby, you never know when a well-heeled buyer will take the plunge on a Ruth rarity.

HAIL AND FAREWELL TO BOBBY HULL

Professional sports lost another legend when Bobby Hull died on Jan. 30. The longtime Chicago Blackhawks star has been popular in the hobby for decades, thanks to his status as a fan-friendly, generous signer.

There's a good supply of Hull autographs out there, so don't expect their value to soar. Signed and authenticated photos usually go for less than $50. Signed pucks or sticks sell for anywhere from $25-$100, sometimes more. Signed cards issued by manufacturers in recent years can be had for $50-$100. Vintage Hull-signed cards can bring hundreds. We saw two Hull-signed jerseys sell on eBay for around $400.



The most enticing Hull item is his 1958 Topps rookie card. In the hobby's boom year of 2020, we saw two specimens graded PSA 8 sell for prices of $60,000 and $55,655. But it's a condition-sensitive item that lately hasn't been turning up in 8 (or higher) condition on eBay.

You're more likely to see a 4- or 5-grade Hull rookie on eBay. In such cases, expect to pay $2,000-$3,500. Watch out for reprints — and keep up your search if you're in the hunt for a Hull rookie.

A GEM-MINT JAMES

A 10-grade LeBron James Refractor rookie card ranked near the top of our chart this time out. Just beyond our Top 10 was another Gem-Mint James card, this one an autographed insert from Upper Deck's 2003-04 Ultimate Collection set. That card's PSA 10 grade helped attract 65 bids, which pushed the final price to $15,800.

James is still performing at a crazy-high level: As of early February, he was averaging 30 points per game for the Lakers — three points higher than his career average. Clearly, he's defying Father Time; he turned 38 in December 2022.

Yet at some point in the not-too-distant future, LeBron will be a retired legend. Until then, it's not a bad idea to stock up on his cards and memorabilia.

Hoop collectors are doing just that. Besides the two items noted above, we can report these hefty prices paid at eBay during the past month:

- $15,199 on 55 bids for a 2003-04 Topps Chrome Xfractor graded PSA 8.
- $15,099 on 55 bids for a 2004-05 Upper Deck SP Authentic Signatures card graded PSA 10.
- $15,000 on 63 bids for a 2003-04 Fleer EX Jambalaya card graded BGS 9.
- $14,100 on 44 bids for a James-autographed 2013 NBA Finals jersey. The jersey was marketed by Upper Deck Authenticated and includes, as part of James' inscription, the notation "#14/50."

HURTS SO GOOD

In leading his team to this year's Super Bowl, Jalen Hurts has entrenched himself as a rising star in the collectibles market. The Philadelphia Eagles quarterback is headed toward the hobby's upper echelon of signal-callers, a fraternity that includes Mahomes, Josh Allen and Joe Burrow.

Here's a look at recent Hurts hauls from eBay sellers:

- $14,800 on 65 bids for a 2020 Panini National Treasures autographed patch card. Graded PSA 9, the card was marked #86/99. Another example of the same card, graded BGS 8.5 and marked #38/99, sold for $11,700 on 20 bids.
- $11,000 on 65 bids for a 2020 Panini Flawless Sapphire autographed double-patch card. Graded BGS 8.5, it's marked #10/10.
- $9,487 on 49 bids for a signed 2020 Donruss Optic Gold Vinyl Prizm 1-of-1 card. It was graded PSA 9, with a 10 for the autograph.
- $6,980 on 48 bids for a 2020 Panini Contenders Optic Rookie Ticket card. Marked #7/10, it was graded 10 by SGC.

JOE MONTANA COLLECTION UP FOR BID;
FANATICS STARTING LIVESTREAM MARKETPLACE

MONTANA
16
my last TD pass as a 49er
12-28-92

Before Tom Brady, there was Joe Montana — the greatest Super Bowl quarterback in the pre-Brady era.

Known as "Joe Cool" and "The Comeback Kid," Montana led the San Francisco 49ers to four Super Bowl victories from 1982-90 and was the first NFL quarterback to win three Super Bowl MVPs. His four Super Bowl wins (tied with Terry Bradshaw) is second only to Brady.

A two-time NFL MVP, Montana has an impressive memorabilia collection from his Hall of Fame career. The "Joe Montana Collection" highlights the February Elite Auction Feb. 9-March 1 at Goldin Co. It includes the red 49ers jersey Montana wore in Super Bowls XIX and XXIII, which had an opening bid of $250,000.

"I have been fortunate to have some incredible moments in my career, but these weren't just individual moments. They were moments celebrated with an entire fanbase of people," Montana said through Goldin. "I have amassed a lot of memorabilia over the course of my career, and I am excited to share these parts of my collection for fans to enjoy and continue to relive the memories."

A portion of the proceeds will go to The Four Rings Montana Family Foundation, which supports local children's charities.

FANATICS STARTING LIVESTREAM MARKETPLACE

Fanatics is taking its next step toward selling trading cards directly to consumers by launching a livestreamed marketplace.

According to CNBC, the new Fanatics Live platform, which will launch in the second half of 2023, will feature a website and standalone app where collectors can buy trading cards. The digital platform will also feature live breaking as well as personality-driven content designed to market collectibles. It will focus solely on trading cards initially.

"We have a big opportunity to really grow the hobby by bringing in people who wouldn't necessarily classify themselves as a collector today and open them up to this hobby by the way of entertainment and a community where they can hang around like-minded people," Fanatics Live CEO Nick Bell said in an interview with CNBC. "This is not just about taking a product and selling it; it's about creating this really entertaining format and experience."

LEBRON, KOBE JERSEYS SET RECORDS

On Jan. 27, the jersey LeBron James wore during Game 7 of the 2013 NBA Finals sold for a record $3.68 million in an auction at Sotheby's. The sale was nearly six times more than the previous highest-selling James jersey ($630,000 in 2020) and was the third highest-selling NBA jersey ever.

A week later, a game-worn, signed jersey from Kobe Bryant's 2007-08 MVP season sold for $5.84 million.

In other big auction sales:

- The historic Diego Maradona "Hand of God" soccer ball, photo-matched to the 1986 World Cup Final, had a bid of $1.7 million at Goldin.
- Two game-worn Tom Brady jerseys were set for six-figure sales shortly after the legendary QB announced his retirement. A 2010 Patriots jersey had a bid of $230,000 at Heritage Auctions and was expected to top $400,000, while a 2022 Tampa Bay Bucs jersey had a bid of $203,000 at Goldin.

A NEW ‘HOLY GRAIL’

1952 Topps Mickey Mantle surpasses iconic Honus Wagner as top vintage card

BY GREG BATES

MICKEY MANTLE

Early, high-grade Mickey Mantle cards are still tops when it comes to vintage collectors.

Four of the top 10 vintage card sales from 2022 were of the Mick — three of his iconic 1952 Topps examples, and one of his true rookie, the 1951 Bowman.

All of the top 10 vintage cards — with nine of those being baseball — cracked the $1 million mark last year.

“The market is alive and well for blue-chip items,” said Derek Grady, executive vice president, Heritage Sports Auctions. “Vintage is as strong as ever.”

The biggest of those blue-chip items broke the world record for the highest price paid for a sports card. Anthony Giordano sold his 1952 Topps Mantle, which was graded 9.5 by SGC, through Heritage Auctions for $12.6 million. The card, which was on display at the National Sports Collectors Convention in Atlantic City, N.J., sold in August.

Grady played the lead role in the sale of that pristine Mantle.

“That’s the highlight of my career,” Grady said. “I don’t know how I’m going to top it.”

A trio of 1909 T206 Honus Wagner cards rank No. 2, 3 and 4, respectively, among the top-selling cards of 2022.

An SGC 2 example of Wagner’s Sweet Caporal sold for $7.25 million at Goldin, briefly setting the all-time record before it was topped by the 9.5 Mantle.

A PSA 1.5 White Border Wagner went for $3.72 million in early October, nine weeks after the previous Wagner sold. Charlie Sheen’s “All-Star Café” PSA 1 Wagner sold for $3.136 million.

“Wagner is as strong as ever,” Grady said. “A lot of people thought Wagners have reached their peak, and 1s and Authentic [grades] sell for a few million dollars now. When I was a kid, that card was considered the ‘Holy Grail.’ This generation is more like considering the ’52 Topps Mickey Mantle as the ‘Holy Grail.’ There were PSA 8 Mickey Mantles that sold for over a million dollars in the past year, up to $2 million.”

A 1951 Bowman Mantle in a PSA 9 came in fifth among the highest selling vintage cards last year, going for $3.192 million. PSA has graded nine Mantle 9s and just one 10 (which is owned by renowned collector Marshall Fogel).

Another ’52 Topps Mantle, this one a PSA 8, went for $1.56 million to rank sixth, while another T206 Wager sold for $1.52 million at Robert Edward Auctions to rank seventh.

Rounding out the top 10 were: a 1916 M101-4 Sporting News Babe Ruth PSA 6 for $1.5 million; a ’52 Topps Mantle PSA 8 for $1.47; and a 1979 Topps Wayne Gretzky PSA 10 for $1.2 million.

“Vintage is much stronger than modern,” Grady said. “Pandemic modern prices went through the roof, and they’re starting to come back to Earth.”

MODERN GEMS

Basketball, football stars highlight Top 10 modern cards of 2022

BY GREG BATES

It's safe to say basketball and football rule modern sports cards.

Of the top 10 modern cards — 1987 or later — sold in 2022, basketball accounted for six on the list and football the other four.

"That isn't super surprising considering those two, basketball and then football — football, predominantly quarterbacks — really drive our market from a modern perspective," said Jesse Craig, vice president of sales for PWCC Marketplace.

The fact that basketball and football — two popular sports in the United States as well as overseas — hold those spots is very telling for Craig.

"That shows the desirability that those two sports have and how well [commissioners] Adam Silver and Roger Goodell have done from a marketing perspective," Craig said. "Basketball, obviously, has become pretty well known internationally. The Chinese market is huge for the NBA, and they're also huge for trading cards. You're seeing the NFL investing money in playing games overseas to try to expand their footprint and their market."

Luka Doncic's 2018 National Treasures NBA Logoman Patch Auto 1/1 (BGS 9) claimed the top spot, selling for $3.12 million at PWCC Marketplace, setting a record for a basketball card sold in a public auction.

A pair of LeBron James cards came in a three-way tie for second place. His 2020-21 Panini Flawless Triple Logoman Patch 1/1 (PSA Authentic) and 2003-04 Upper Deck Exquisite Collection Rookie Patch Auto /99 (BGS 9.5) both fetched $2.4 million.

A 1997 Metal Universe Kobe Bryant Precious Metal Gems Emerald /10 (BGS 8.5) came in sixth with a sale of $2 million.

A 2006-07 Upper Deck Exquisite Collection All NBA Access Michael Jordan/LeBron James/Kobe Bryant Triple Logoman 1/1 (PSA Authentic) was eighth at $1.68 million.

Another James 2003-04 Upper Deck Exquisite Collection Rookie Patch Auto /99 (BGS 8.5) fell in the ninth spot, selling for $1.572 million in early January 2022.

"From a modern card perspective, what's actually a little surprising to me is that there's only one Michael Jordan card that made the list," Craig said. "It wasn't just a Michael Jordan card, it was a triple Logoman. That, to me, is fairly interesting that we have a Luka Doncic card — we have the most expensive card with PWCC selling for $3.12 million, but it was a Luka card. It wasn't a LeBron card, it wasn't a Kobe card, it wasn't a Jordan card, it was a Luka Doncic card. That shows you the future of the NBA, what hoops people are betting on."

Tom Brady's 2000 Playoff Contenders Championship Ticket Rookie Auto /100 claimed three of the top 10 spots. A BGS 9 of that card sold for $2.4 million at PWCC in October, tying for the second-highest figure in 2022. A BGS 8.5 with a 10 autograph went for $2.3 million eight months earlier in February, placing it fifth on the list.

Another Brady BGS 8.5 went for $1.47 million in April to claim the 10th slot.

"We have seen that Championship Ticket and we have seen that LeBron James Exquisite card pull back in value this past year because of the flood of supply that's hit the market," Craig said. "I actually, because of that, believe it's a very, very good time to take a look at those seriously again for those investors that are looking for those cards."

The last football card to make the list, ranking seventh, was a Justin Herbert 2020 Panini National Treasures Signed Platinum NFL Shield Rookie 1/1 (BGS 8.5) that went for $1.8 million.

Jordan, Ruth, Mantle and Ali lead the way as Top 10 sports memorabilia items of 2022 all top $1 million

BY LARRY CANALE

For most of us, the idea of spending more than a million dollars on a sports collectible is as far-fetched as buying that mansion on the ocean. Yet that's where the high-end market has gone: Between top-grade cards (see page 34) and "holy grail" pieces of memorabilia, seven-figure sums are becoming more commonplace.

We saw it time and again in 2022, when a steady stream of cream-of-the-crop sports treasures busted past the $1 million mark.

The lead dog is — who else? — Michael Jordan. He's joined by other names you likely could guess. Babe Ruth. Ty Cobb. Mickey Mantle. Muhammad Ali. Jackie Robinson. Kobe Bryant. There's also Tiger Woods, soccer legend Diego Maradona and baseball's current golden boy, Aaron Judge.

1. $10.091 MILLION

Michael Jordan 1998 NBA Finals jersey (Sotheby's)

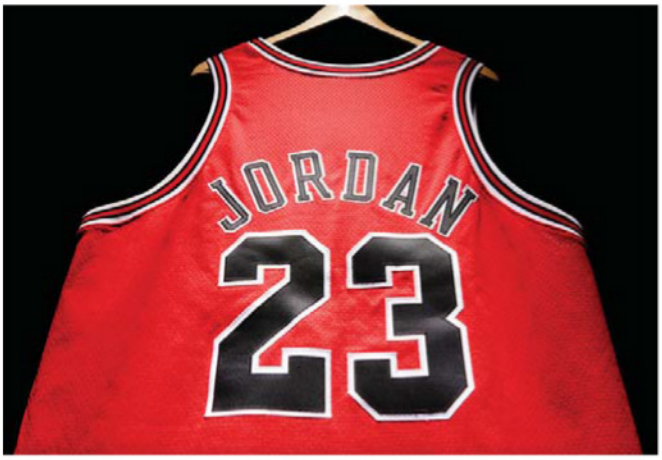
The significance: Air Jordan wore it during Game 1 of the Bulls' "Last Dance" series.

If you're a longtime hoop fan, you likely remember the 1998 NBA Finals. The Utah Jazz squared off against Jordan's Chicago Bulls to cap off the dynasty's "Last Dance" season.

The jersey was worn by Jordan in Game 1. The Jazz won in overtime, despite Jordan's 33 points, but after that, the Bulls went on a rampage and took four of the next five games.

In his swan-song series with the Bulls, Jordan carried his team to the NBA title, netting 33.5 points per game, including 45 in the decisive Game 6. The triumph gave Jordan his sixth NBA ring.

In September, Sotheby's offered Jordan's Game 1 jersey as the lone item in its first "Invictus" auction. The presale estimate was set at $3-$5 million. By the time the dust settled, bidding had surpassed $10 million, making Jordan's jersey the highest-priced piece of sports memorabilia ever. (For now.)



2. $8.93 MILLION

Diego Maradona World Cup jersey (Sotheby's)

The significance: Maradona wore it in the game featuring his "Hand of God" and "Goal of the Century" moments.

In 1986 World Cup play, Argentina edged England, 2-1, in an unforgettable quarterfinal matchup. Maradona scored both goals. His game-winner would earn the title "Goal of the Century" by FIFA.

Somehow, Maradona's first score has an even more dramatic nickname: the "Hand of God" goal, because of the way he apparently "palmed" the ball past the goalie. After the game, Maradona described the goal as being "a little with the head of Maradona and a little with the hand of God."

As for his jersey, Maradona swapped it with an opposing player. Steve Hodge from England's team ran into Maradona as he was leaving the arena and simply asked if he'd trade jerseys. Maradona agreed, and off Hodge went with his treasure in hand.

In 2002, he lent it to the National Football Museum in Manchester, England. Some 20 years later, he consigned it to Sotheby's. When the jersey landed on the block in April 2022, it carried a presale estimate of $5-$7.5 million. Bidding brought it to $8.93 million — a sports memorabilia record that stood just under five months.

3. $6.18 MILLION

Muhammad Ali championship belt (Heritage Auctions)

The significance: "The Greatest" won and wore this belt in the 1970s.

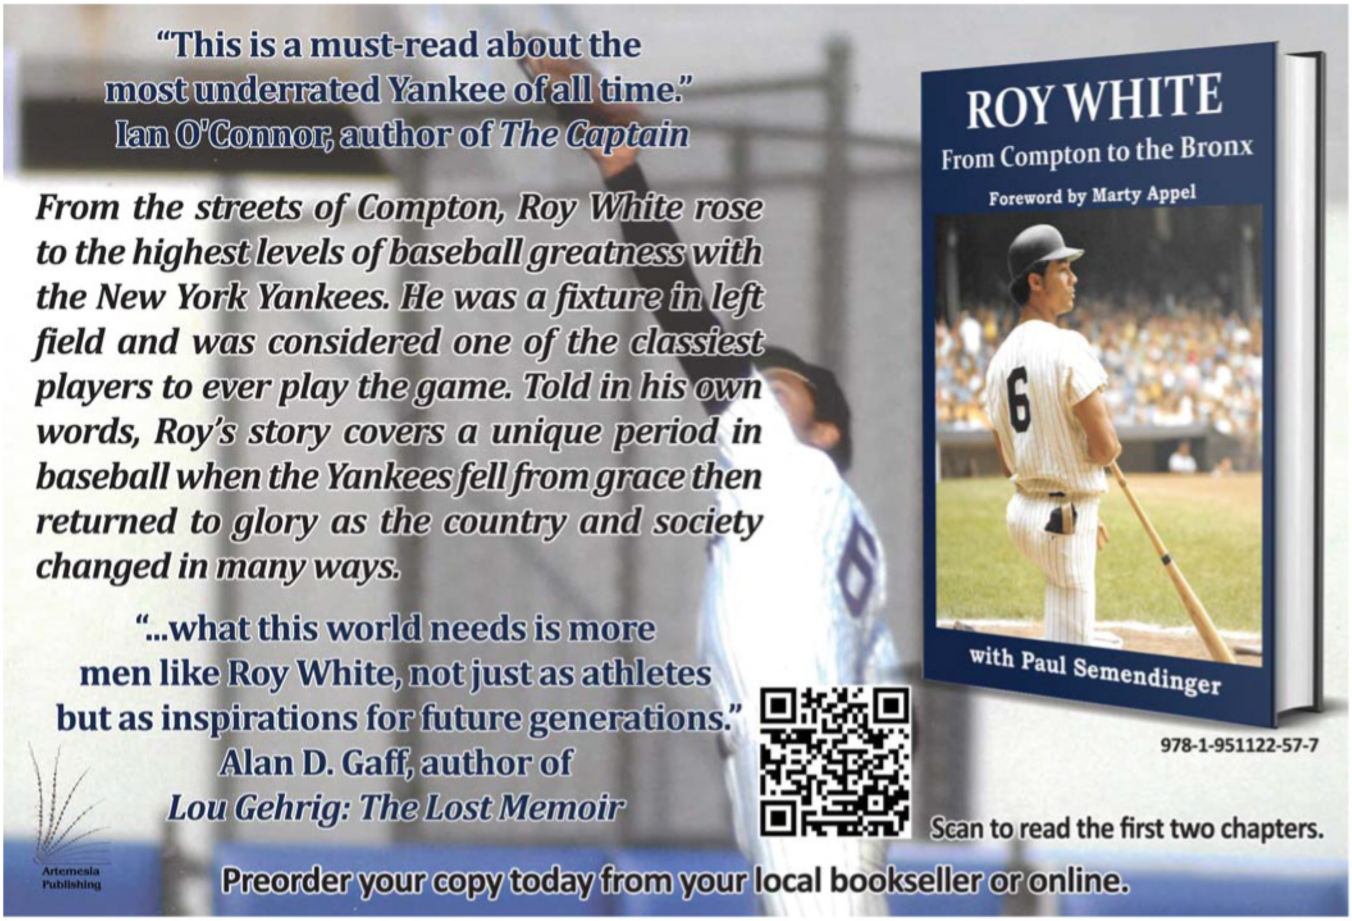
In summer 2022, Troy Kinunen, president and CEO of MEARS Auctions, consigned his own collection of 1,600 Ali items — including some when Ali was still known as Cassius Clay — to Heritage Auctions. Among them was this one-of-a-kind belt, Ali's prize for becoming the WBC Heavyweight Champion in 1974 and retaining it through 1978.

Having this particular belt on the block caused a stir among serious Ali collectors, and why not? Ali first won the belt by beating George Foreman in Zaire in 1974, and it's a rarity that has few comparables. According to Heritage, it is one of only two Ali WBC belts known to exist.

4. $5.156 MILLION

Tiger Woods 2000-2001 irons (Golden Age Auctions)

The significance: These are the irons Woods used in winning four majors in a row.



"This is a must-read about the most underrated Yankee of all time."
Ian O'Connor, author of The Captain

From the streets of Compton, Roy White rose to the highest levels of baseball greatness with the New York Yankees. He was a fixture in left field and was considered one of the classiest players to ever play the game. Told in his own words, Roy's story covers a unique period in baseball when the Yankees fell from grace then returned to glory as the country and society changed in many ways.

"...what this world needs is more men like Roy White, not just as athletes but as inspirations for future generations."
Alan D. Gaff, author of

Tiger Woods was on a roll in 2000 and 2001. In a memorable stretch of PGA tournaments, he used a set of Titleist 681-T irons to win four majors — a dominant span that golf aficionados call “the Tiger Slam.” Woods’s reign began in 2000, when he won the PGA Championship, U.S. Open and the Open Championship. The following April, he picked up where he left off by shooting 16 under par to win the 2001 Masters.

On the heels of that remarkable run, Titleist executive Steve Mata delivered a replacement set of irons to Woods, who gave him the actual “Tiger Slam” irons. Years later, in 2010, Mata put them on the auction block. The winner: private equity investor Todd Brock, who bought them for “only” $57,242. A self-described “Tiger superfan,” Brock kept the irons in a frame in his Texas office until 2022, when he decided to part with them via Golden Age Auctions — and saw them reel in $5.156 million.

5. $2.736 MILLION

Kobe Bryant 1996-97 Lakers home jersey (SCP Auctions)

The significance: From Bryant’s rookie jersey.

Kobe Bryant wore this jersey in multiple games during his rookie season, per photo-matching evidence. At least two of them were playoff games in May 1997, when the Lakers squared off against the Utah Jazz in the Western Conference Semifinals.

Bryant’s freshman season saw him play in 71 games, most of them off the bench. At the time, he was a mere pup of 18; as such, his numbers paled in comparison to what we’d see him do in the 19 seasons that followed. As a rookie, Bryant averaged 7.6 points, 1.9 rebounds and 1.3 assists per game. His ultimate career numbers: 25 points, 5.2 rebounds and 4.7 assists per game. This well-preserved jersey is a direct line to the promise he showed in starting out his Hall of Fame career.

6. $2.19 MILLION

Mickey Mantle 1968 game-worn jersey (Heritage)

The significance: This is the jersey Mantle wore during the final game of his storied career.

On Sept. 28, 1968, Mickey Mantle stepped to the plate during a Yankees road game at Fenway Park for one last at-bat. Sadly, he popped out to shortstop, but it hardly sullied his near-mythical career. In 18 seasons, “The Magnificent Yankee” won three MVP awards, blasted 536 homers (plus a record 18 more in World Series play), stole 156 bases and batted .298. Fittingly, No. 7 won seven World Series titles.

Mantle’s final game-worn jersey has some tight provenance. He gifted it to his pal Tom Catal, who was president of the Mickey Mantle Museum in Cooperstown. He also inked a personal inscription to Catal, signing it: “To Tom, a great friend always, ‘The Mick.’” Over the years, the jersey has been photo-matched ad nauseam and thus has been verified as the jersey Mantle was wearing on Sept. 19, when he hit his 535th career homer off Denny McClain in Detroit. That homer pushed him past Jimmie Foxx by one. He hit one more (at home) off Jim Lonborg the next day, giving him 536.

The jersey has now been sold three times at Heritage: for $486,000 in 2017; $850,000 in 2020; and $2.19 million in 2022.

7. $1.68 MILLION

Babe Ruth 1918-22 signed bat (Heritage)

The significance: The Bambino swung this war club in countless games over a five-year span.

Before Babe Ruth emerged as a prolific home run hitter, Major League Baseball’s leading sluggers put up pretty paltry totals. Between 1900-1918, there were only two seasons when the home run leader hit more than 20.

One of the sluggers from those early years was lefty-hitting Frank Baker, who led the AL in homers four seasons in a row, starting in 1911, with totals of 11, 10 (tied with Tris Speaker), 12 and 9. It was enough of a power display that he became known as “Home Run” Baker.

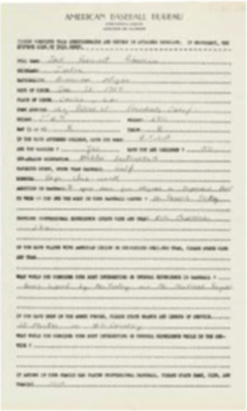
Enter Babe Ruth, who, after moving from the Red Sox to the Yankees in 1920, blasted 54 homers, followed by 59 in 1921. His prodigious blasts would forever change the game.

The bat highlighted here was one of the war clubs that Ruth swung between 1918-22. (We say “war club” because it weighs 44 ounces and measures 36 inches long!) PSA/DNA authenticated the bat for game use, giving it a “GU” grade of 10.

And how’s this for a fitting factoid? Provenance shows that Ruth gifted this bat to none other than Home Run Baker, who had been traded to the Yankees in 1916 and would play with Ruth for three seasons. The Babe signed the bat in fountain pen ink, adding extra appeal. PSA/DNA authenticated the autograph and graded it 6/10.

8. $1.680 MILLION

Jackie Robinson 1946 Baseball Questionnaire (Heritage)



AMERICAN BASEBALL BUREAU

The significance: Robinson completed and signed this survey a year before breaking baseball's color barrier.

In 1946, Jackie Robinson filled out an American Baseball Bureau Questionnaire, signing his name to it and creating what turned out to be a significant document.

Dated "28 Mar 1946," the document provides us with a revealing slice of biographical material. For example, Robinson wrote "Golf" next to the line "Favorite sport, other than baseball." After "Hobbies," he wrote, "Boys club work."

And, most telling, Jackie foretold the near future when responding to the query "Ambition in baseball." His answer? "To open the door for Negroes in organized baseball." Mission accomplished!

9. $1.62 MILLION

Ty Cobb 1910-14 signed bat (Heritage)

The significance: Baseball's all-time leading hitter swung this bat during perhaps his most productive span.

Ty Cobb's career average of .366 may be untouchable. So when a surviving tool of his trade comes up for auction, it creates a buzz. And when that tool dates to a span of time where he was particularly brilliant, desirability skyrockets.

Such is the case with this bat: Cobb used it between 1910-1914, a stretch of seasons during which he batted .382, .419, .409, .389 and .368. And check out his numbers in his 1911 MVP performance: 248 hits, 148 runs, 47 doubles, 24 triples, eight homers, 127 RBI and 83 stolen bases. Whew!

Heritage says the grain in the "hefty slab of age-toned ash" is so punished "that two dozen nails tack down the wood where it swelled from hundreds of impacts inflicted over months if not years of work."

10. $1.5 MILLION

Aaron Judge 62nd home run ball (Goldin)

The significance: AL-record-breaking HR ball

Yankee slugger Aaron Judge hit his much-anticipated 62nd home run on Oct. 4, 2022 in Arlington vs. the Texas Rangers. Fan Cory Youmans caught it. The next day, Memory Lane Inc. offered Youmans $2 million for the ball. He declined. A month later, he received another offer, this time for $3 million. Again, he declined, opting to consign it to Goldin Co. instead.

The sale closed on Dec. 17. Bidding started strong but just as quickly hit a wall, settling at $1.5 million. Even though Youmans's gamble backfired, it's nevertheless an impressive payoff.

GAR MILLER CARDS

The Longest Continuing Baseball Card Dealer in the Industry

A collector since the age of 10. And a seller since 1970, with an early detailed price list copied, imitated and saved by customers from the early days of the hobby. Publisher of the first "How to Collect Baseball Cards " booklet – complete with a price guide -- in 1973. Today, after more than 52 years, I continue to offer a smorgasbord of quality baseball and football cards, autographs and other memorabilia from the early 1900s to the 1980s. Check my website at www.garmillercards.com and see what you've been missing. Have patience – occasionally a card or cards you've ordered may not still be available – or in the condition listed – but there's plenty to choose from.

Special Nr Mt Complete Set Prices

1978 Topps Baseball - $250
1979 Topps Baseball - $225
1980 Topps baseball - $175 - Add $15 Postage per set

SPORTSADDRESSLISTS.COM

NEW AND UPDATED SPORTS ADDRESS LISTS FOR 2023

For over twenty five years I've been researching and selling the best and most accurate sports address lists available and there is one winner: YOU!

I'd like to invite everyone to stop by my website at www.sportsaddresslists.com to see the lineup and full descriptions of all great sports address lists for 2023, each one a proven winner.

1) BASEBALL ADDRESS LIST (there are over 3,800 new and updated addresses for 2023 including over 175 debut players for 2022)
2) FOOTBALL ADDRESS LIST
3) HOCKEY ADDRESS LIST
4) BASKETBALL ADDRESS LIST
5) MEN AND WOMEN OF DISTINCTION ADDRESS LIST
6) MINOR LEAGUE BALLPLAYERS ADDRESS LIST
7) GOLF ADDRESS LIST

PLUS when you order any of the address lists and include your email address, you will receive address update emails several times a year. Also, emails letting you know about players who have recently started to charge a through the mail signing and players that can no longer sign due to health reasons.

No other address list producer sends out the number of address updates that I do.

Who do these email address updates help? YOU!

Because you won't be wasting postage sending requests to outdated addresses.

For more information on all of the great sports address lists, please visit my website at:

COLLECTORS CORNER BY GARY HERRON

SHARING BASEBALL MEMORIES

Group of Albuquerque collectors share memorable stories of sports collecting adventures

I can't argue that Albuquerque, N.M. has a rich sports history. But that doesn't mean there aren't passionate sports fans, hobby shops and card collectors in this Southwest city.

Tell someone you hail from Albuquerque and you get a couple responses: "Oh, the home of 'Breaking Bad.'" Or, from real sports fans, "That's where North Carolina State and Jim Valvano upset Phi Slamma Jamma in the 1983 Final Four!"

Others may recognize it as the place where NFL Hall of Famer Brian Urlacher played at the University of New Mexico, or the home of the Triple-A baseball team that got its nickname from "The Simpsons" — the Isotopes.

There's no place I'd rather live and as a local sportswriter for more than four decades, I have had the opportunity to cover some memorable events and interesting stories.

As a baseball hobbyist since 1978, I'm always looking for guys who have great sports collections. Some of my latest "finds" led to monthly meetings of what I call the Old Farts Baseball Club.

I met the first guy I featured when I saw an online post of him trying to dispose of some 2021 Topps Baseball cards. He visited me at my newspaper office, and after we made a deal, I saw he had a cool Mickey Mantle license plate on the front of his truck.

One thing led to another and soon I was at his home, ogling his great collection, which took up two rooms and included an enviable stash of Mantle items, plus his new faves, Mike Trout and Shohei Ohtani.

Thanks to a short article in SCD, I came across another local fellow who met Mantle in 1962 in Kansas City. They were both Okies and The Mick came over to chat with this then-14-year-old kid. Mickey brought over his teammates, too, and that evening's starting pitcher, Jim Bouton, tossed this grateful kid a baseball he'd been warming up with.

While attending a local card show, I bumped into a guy who had a big Yankees collection, and he was soon featured in the newspaper I've been working at for 22 years.

With the idea of getting these guys together to talk baseball and the hobby, I included another longtime buddy who had a nice collection of thousands of autographed baseball cards and Milwaukee Braves memorabilia.

The original trio each has the first name of Joe, and they became Old Joe, New Joe and Other Joe. After we met for the first time, I thought of other local seniors who are passionate about baseball, and the group grew. We had 10 "members" at our third meeting in September at local sports card shop Cardboard Collectors.

Among the group are several with great stories:

"Other Joe," who met Mantle in 1962, ran into him again and The Mick still remembered him eight years later. He was the first kid to ask Mantle to hit a homer for him, and No. 7 actually did it!

"New Joe," who has since boxed his collection and turned his home into a photo gallery of his best shots, was on the field at Shea Stadium when the Mets won the 1986 World Series. He also has a great story about driving a limo and kicking Mick Jagger and his party out of it.

"Old Joe" insists the hobby is all about the memories, and he's never sold any of his treasured cards. He has good stories about Bruce Tanner and JR Phillips, and a not-so-nice one about LaTroy Hawkins.

Another guy was a college teammate of "Bull Durham" Director Ron Shelton. Another came up with Henry Aaron's 755th home run baseball — the last one Hammerin' Hank ever hit on July 20, 1976.

Ed has many of the baseball cards he collected 60 years ago, plus some cool autographed items. As a youngster, he mailed such requests to team offices. Among his priceless autographs is one of Wilt Chamberlain.

Another member took a trip back east to visit 97-year-old Bobby Shantz, the 1952 AL MVP. He knocked on Shantz's door and was invited in, and Shantz signed numerous copies of baseball books.

Shantz, who played for the Yankees from 1957-60, told him that Mantle received large bags of autograph requests weekly and legendary Yankees equipment man Pete Sheehy got so good at duplicating the Mick's signature that many collectors don't really have a true Mantle autograph.

Our group even had a guest — the man who probably holds the record for most Tommy John surgeries. Dan Opperman, the Los Angeles Dodgers' No.1 draft pick in 1987, went to the same Las Vegas high school as Greg Maddux and had three TJ surgeries. Opperman, who played at Triple-A Albuquerque and remained to raise his family there, talked for an hour about pitching.

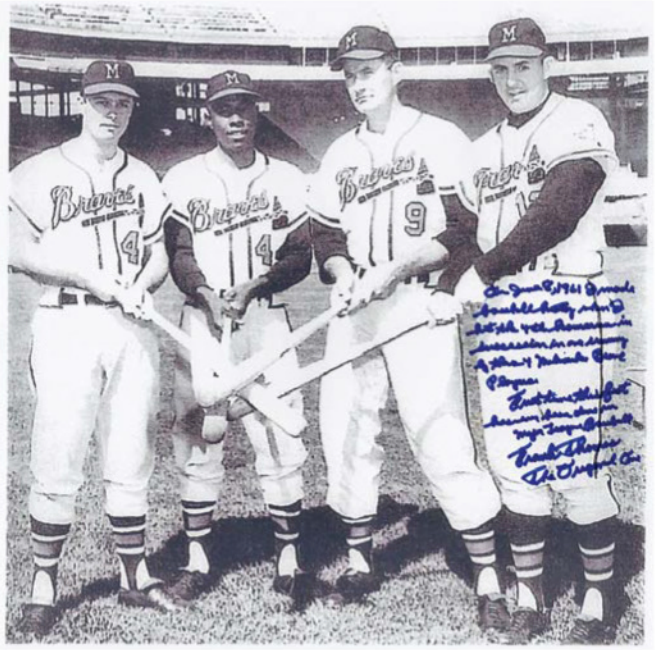
We've had great meetings so far, and I can't wait to get together to talk about other sports.

— Gary Herron has been contributing articles to SCD since the 1990s. Baseball is his life: He has been an official scorer for more than 1,600 Triple-A baseball games since 1983.

A GRACIOUS BIG LEAGUER

1950s Pirates star Frank Thomas remembered as a charitable, fan-friendly card collector

BY GEORGE VRECHEK



Frank Thomas (far right) signed this photo of Eddie Mathews, Hank Aaron, Joe Adcock and Thomas after the four Milwaukee Braves set a record with successive home runs on June 8, 1961.

Former MLB player and Pirates star Frank Thomas passed away at age 93 on Jan. 16. I count myself among the many collectors who had the opportunity to talk with him.

Thomas played in the majors for 16 years and retained detailed memories of his baseball career. Fans described him as approachable and happy to share his stories. He was also a baseball card collector and was still adding to his collection until selling it a few years ago.

I interviewed Thomas in November 2021 and he followed our conversations with letters and photos. He was generous and friendly. By several accounts, he could also be argumentative and outspoken, reminding one of Clint Eastwood's crusty Walt Kowalski character in the movie "Gran Torino."

I called Thomas to see if I could resurrect the idea of putting together a theoretical game between National and American League teams with the oldest living players who had appeared on baseball cards.

He appreciated being selected for my National League squad and joked about playing until he was 100. He confessed that although he had stayed in fairly good shape over the years, his lower legs had not been cooperating lately; he mentioned his eyesight and arthritis weren't exactly assets either.

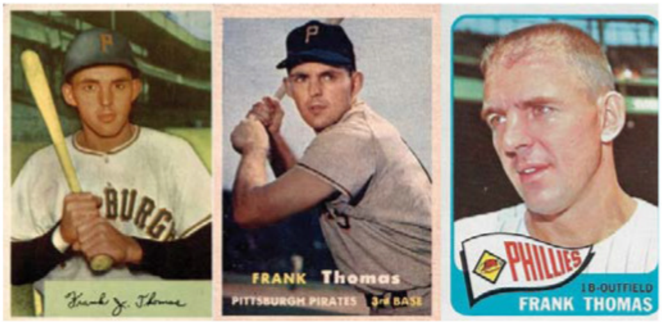
Thomas was born on June 11, 1929, the son of Bronaslaus Tumas, who had immigrated from Lithuania and had lost an arm in a work accident. As a kid, Thomas collected baseball cards and excelled playing sports. He thought he might become a priest and went into the seminary for high school at Mount Carmel College. However, sports and family won out over the priesthood.

Thomas was signed by Pittsburgh and played for Class D Tallahassee in 1948. He was paid $150 per month, or $750 for the year. One year in the minors he saved $900. Thomas had a good recollection of numbers and never threw his money around.

In 1950 and 1951 he played with Double-A New Orleans, started to hit the long ball, made the league All-Star team and was called up to Pittsburgh for 39 games in 1951. He married Dolores Wozniak in 1951. In 1953 he was in the majors to stay and hit 30 homers and had 102 RBIs as the centerfielder for the Pirates. After the season, he personally negotiated with "management" (Thomas didn't want me to even mention the name Branch Rickey) to get his salary bumped to $15,000 per year. He settled for $12,500.

Bowman signed players back then to appear on trading cards. Thomas signed with Bowman, probably in 1950 or 1951 at Spring Training, before Topps got into the picture. He appeared on Bowman cards in 1954 and '55 until Topps took over in 1956. He had the option of getting cash each year (around $125) or taking a gift. He opted for the lawn furniture in the Topps catalog. He met Topps designer Sy Berger and stayed in touch with him to obtain complete card sets each year.

In his first full year in the majors in 1953, Thomas was the centerfielder and team slugger (following Ralph Kiner's



Thomas' 1954 Bowman rookie card, 1957 Topps card and his last regular card in 1965.

June 4 trade to the Cubs). You would think that collectors would have been clamoring for his first card. However, Bowman had the rights to Thomas and Topps was dodging litigation with Bowman over signed players.

Thomas didn't get his rookie card with Bowman until 1954. Thereafter, though, he got into most of the assorted card issues through 1965. He was happy to appear on cards, and was featured on Dan-Dee, Red Man, Hires, Jay Publishing, Armour and Salada coins, Exhibit, Post, Jello, Kahn's, team issues and later in Topps, TCMA, Upper Deck and other retro issues.

He vowed that if he made the majors, he would always sign autographs for kids at the ballparks. He felt he "owed it to the fans, whether they booed him or clapped."

Thomas was a competitive player, had eight children and seemed to struggle with management to be paid what he felt he deserved. He spent eight years with the Pirates but then bumped around with six teams for the next eight years. He hit 286 homers, had 962 RBIs and a .266 lifetime average.

After being released by the Cubs in 1966, Thomas considered playing in Japan, but they wouldn't let him take his family along, so he dropped the idea. He said he contacted 25 major league teams to look for work as a scout or coach without any luck. Steelers announcer Joe Tucker gave him a good lead, though, and he was hired by the ICM School of Business as a liaison with area high schools. He spent the next 18 years making school visits to talk to students and faculty. He felt they appreciated his honest approach.

After retiring in 1984, Thomas continued to be active in charity golf tournaments, old-timers' games and card show appearances. He recalled his first card show as being in New York, where he played from 1962-64 and was remembered for being a slugger on the original Mets.

Thomas stored his card collection under his bed. A house fire in 1992 destroyed the cards as well as about half of his house. However, to his surprise, many collectors, including SCD readers, contacted him to help rebuild his collection card by card working off a list of his needs.

He contacted Berger at Topps, who helped him pick up some of the more recent sets. He eventually put together complete sets again from 1952 on except for eight 1952 high numbers, which he could rattle off from memory.

I contacted a few collectors who helped Thomas rebuild his collection.

"I first met Frank at a charity golf tournament, and when I heard of his want list, I managed to dig up a few cards for him," Anson Whaley recalled. "I mentioned that I was starting to collect autographs a little. It was a very off-the-cuff remark. A few weeks later, there's this large envelope in the mailbox from him full of over 200 autographed cuts and index cards of players across the 1960s and 1970s. That's the kind of guy he was — overly generous and thoughtful. He loved meeting fans and raising money for his charities."

"I was able to send him some hits to his want lists," collector Neal Thomas said. "I was not looking for anything in return, but he sent me a number of autographed cards, and we started a correspondence. I ended up with signed cards for my three sons and an invitation to visit him to try and determine if we were long lost relatives. [He was] truly a great guy, with tons of great stories."

Collector Mark Talbot recalled: "I had many interactions over the years. Frank always wrote back with a handwritten note that got harder and harder to read over time. I pulled 1952 high numbers from my collection to send to Frank; he was gracious as usual and sent back some autographs. Frank wrote me about baseball, of course, but was just as open about family, work, his faith and just about anything we were writing about."

Mick Rich added: "Frank was set up at a Robert Morris show autographing for a donation to a charity. I was able to pull up a chair and have a conversation with him. He felt it was important to help others, hence his signing for charity. He got nothing for his appearance, and it actually cost him to have someone drive him there. One of the most pleasant autographs I ever received."

"My family and I were driving east in 2016. We stopped in Pittsburgh to meet Frank for dinner," TJ Valacak recalled. "Frank was such a nice person. He was interested in hearing my kids talk about their sports and school. He brought autographed cards for the kids and shared many stories of his playing days."

In 2012, his wife Dolores ("Dodo") died, and shortly thereafter he sold his collection. Due to the pandemic, there weren't too many card show opportunities for Thomas in the last few years, and he no longer drove. Thomas was aware that he was on several lists of the oldest living former major leaguers and joked, "That is a list you can only go up on, never down."

He donated money from autographs and photos to Camp Happy Days, Kids Kickin' Cancer and Courageous Kidz. His mailman at his 110-unit retirement complex told him he got more mail each day than the rest of the people in the building combined.
